ONLINE INSTRUCTIONAL MODULES AVAILABLE

UWF's librarians have begun to develop a bank of generic, online instructional modules providing an interactive lesson and assignment on various pertinent information- or research-related topics.

Currently-available modules (others under development):
- Recognizing and avoiding plagiarism
- Distinguishing between scholarly journals and popular magazines
- Creating a bibliography / annotated bibliography
- Utilizing concept mapping to narrow a topic or organize a paper
- Distinguishing between primary and secondary sources
- Thinking critically
- Defining the Internet
- Understanding advantages of library resources over Google

Each online module contains:
- A definition of the topic
- Student learning outcomes for the module
- An explanation of the lesson
- Examples of the ideas covered
- Information on where to locate additional information
- Links to related resources
- Exercises & a mechanism for auto-grading
- Ability to print or email a summary of how well the user performed

» Available directly at http://library.uwf.edu/tutorials/ and linked from the library's Website (“Online Tutorials”)
» Main tutorial page also includes a listing of academic terminology that students may find useful.

SECOND ANNUAL INFORMATION LITERACY WORKSHOP

In May 2004, the UWF Libraries offered its first workshop to introduce teaching faculty to the principles of Information Literacy. A 2nd annual interactive workshop, again entitled Integrating Information Literacy Through Collaboration Between College & Library Faculty, will be held from May 2-4, 2005. Information and application procedures are provided in the links below. Deadline for submission of the application materials is March 4, 2005.

- For the 2005 announcement and information http://library.uwf.edu/Reference/ILWorkshop2005.shtml
- For the 2005 application form http://library.uwf.edu/Reference/ILWorkshopForm2005.html
- For results of the 2004 Workshop http://library.uwf.edu/Reference/ILWorkshopResults.shtml
- For more info about information literacy in general http://library.uwf.edu/reference/InfoLiteracy.shtml

Questions about the workshop or the application process can be directed to Ms. Caroline Thompson by phone (850-474-2412) or email (cthompson@uwf.edu).
